Profile

After some time in corporate finance and learning it wasn't for me, I discovered software and computer science, and haven't looked back! Currently studying a Master of Software Engineering and working part-time as a software developer, I am striving to strike the balance between learning core computer science principles and applying those to industry. My ideal company is one that is product-focussed, where I can learn new technologies and be surrounded by intelligent people who are developing cutting edge technology and implementing best-practice software engineering. The perfect work environment for me is one that is open-minded, challenging and supportive of innovative thinking.

Experience

- Software Developer – Everproof (part time)   2017-present
  - Working on application for staff to better administrate users (Python w/ Django)
  - Built RESTful verification services that interface with backend (Python w/ Flask)
  - Contributed to static site (HTML, CSS, JS, Jekyll)
- Demonstrator – University of Melbourne (Intro to Python, casual)   2018
